As we end the year and head into another, I would like to take this time to reflect on the three words we use to define Good News Clinics on the GNC logo: Healing, helping and hoping.

The GNC staff and medical volunteers spend their time at the Clinics healing many who are in need of medical and dental care. In the past fiscal year, our medical patient visits increased by more than 11 percent, and our physician volunteer hours increased by more than 20 percent. The amount of prescriptions filled also increased, and we continue to see a great need for our dental services, as well.

The Clinics help people of all ages and races—their only common bond is the need for healthcare. People such as a single mother of 2 who could not afford healthcare for herself and her children and told our staff of how GNC was there in her time of need and how she thanks God everyday for GNC. People such as a 49-year-old woman who'd lost her job, and her health insurance, due to company downsizing and was concerned because she was being treated for diabetes, asthma and hypertension and knew how critical ongoing medical care and medications were to her health. After being a patient at GNC for 10 months, she found a job with medical insurance and recently came in to make a donation to help other patients.

As far as hope, we hope that you will continue to support Good News Clinics in the year ahead. While the Clinics' income increased in 2008, so did the expenses. As you can imagine, in these increasingly tough economic times, we anticipate that the number of people who need the services of the Clinics will continue to grow in 2009, but with your generous support, Good News Clinics will be there to serve them in their time of need.

A United Way agency, GNC receive no government funding—we are able to provide our services at no charge due to the donations we receive from local businesses, churches, foundations and individuals, including our patients who give back to GNC to help others benefit from the Clinics' services.

Good News Clinics needs your support to continue its mission of healing, helping and providing hope. As the year-end approaches, please give thoughtful consideration to how you can support the Clinics. If you would like to make a financial donation, please complete and return the enclosed envelope or call 770-297-5040.

We ask that you share our need for support with those who may not know of Good News Clinics, and our deepest thanks to all of our current supporters who help make Good News Clinics the success it is—we wouldn't be here without you.
